A LOVERS' FEAST.

Saint Valentine To Be Worshipped Today.

St. Valentine's day is almost ignored in the West, and today will mean nothing unusual to residents of Honolulu. A few cheap prints of alleged comic missives will probably change hands. That will be all.

In the New England states and through the South it will be different. Timid youths will have burst into poetry and with hearts thumping violently against their ribs, they will post the timid scrawl that tells the Jessie, or Mary, or Pearl, what dire disaster has overtaken them at the hands of Cupid, unless the disaster be turned into an ecstasy of joy by Jessie's, or Mary's, or Pearl's consent to be their valentine.

School children will have carefully selected a variety of gayly inked designs, accompanied with various sentiments, and these will be mailed in bold back-hand writing so that the identity of the writer may be concealed. Their arch-enemies and cross-grained school teachers will receive missives in accordance with their feelings towards them, and their friends and the teachers of whom they are fond will be swamped in a flood of chromo pink violets, blue roses, green chrysanthemums, etc., with verses below expressive of undying affection and faithful friendship.

Among the grown-ups there will also be a fluttering of hearts, as the postman nears the door laden with letters and packages. There will be beautiful art creations of silk and paper, with a hidden sentiment tucked away somewhere that will be shyly sought out by the recipient, and blushed over when found. If the young man be very sincere and his pocketbook will permit, the valentine will be very elaborate indeed, and it may cost him as much as $20. This, however, is naught, if it be efficacious in softening the adored one's heart. The belles of the villages and in the circles of the cities will smile confidently as the day approaches, sure of a harvest of love-lorn missives, and sad indeed, will be the maid who has been forgotten. To be without a valentine is to be neglected and unloved.

It is a pretty and quaint old custom and it is unfortunate that it is on the wane, for it brings innocent joy to many hearts and offers a happy excuse for the expression of affection and loving remembrance. Of such things we have too few.

CLAIM IT IS A GAMBLING RESORT

George Lack, manager of the Manila country club and well known in Honolulu, is having troubles of his own at the Philippines' capital. Charges have been made by many persons in Manila that the club is a gambling resort and that genuine sport cannot exist where none but "sure-thing" men congregate. The country club is located at Malate, near the old fort which was taken by the volunteer forces from the Spanish troops in 1898, and from a very small beginning has become one of the attractions of the city.

Lack was here in 1898 with Captain Evans, one of the first men to assume charge of the Spanish custom house at Manila after the American occupation. He came on the transport Arizona, now the Hancock, and remained in the city for several weeks while General King was waiting for orders. Mr. Lack became one of the chief men in the custom house, made money fast, and originated the country club idea. He bought several fleet Manila ponies which coined money for him. The club also numbers among its members Russell Colegrove, who held a premier place in the local courts for many months while the ill-fated steamship City of Columbia was at stake among many claimants.

Legitimate sport was attempted by Lack in Manila but he seems to have failed. Americans in Manila look upon the track at the present time as an eyesore. They see the names of American business men among the shareholders and are at a loss to know why they do not turn the clique down who are dallying with their names and ruining the future of the track.

AWAITS GRAND JURY.

Gill Shooting Case Postponed Until Friday Morning.

The Gill shooting case came up before Judge Wilcox in the police court yesterday morning and was continued to 9:30 o'clock Friday morning. Lorin Andrews, special attorney for the prosecution, said he had received a telephone message from Deputy Attorney General Cathcart asking that the case be continued for a few days, as the Grand Jury would probably take up the matter at once.

On account of this Mr. Andrews asked that the case go over to Monday. The judge claimed that he had also received a message from the Deputy Attorney General and that he had interpreted the few days into two days and in consequence would only grant that length of time.

A CONVINCING ANSWER.

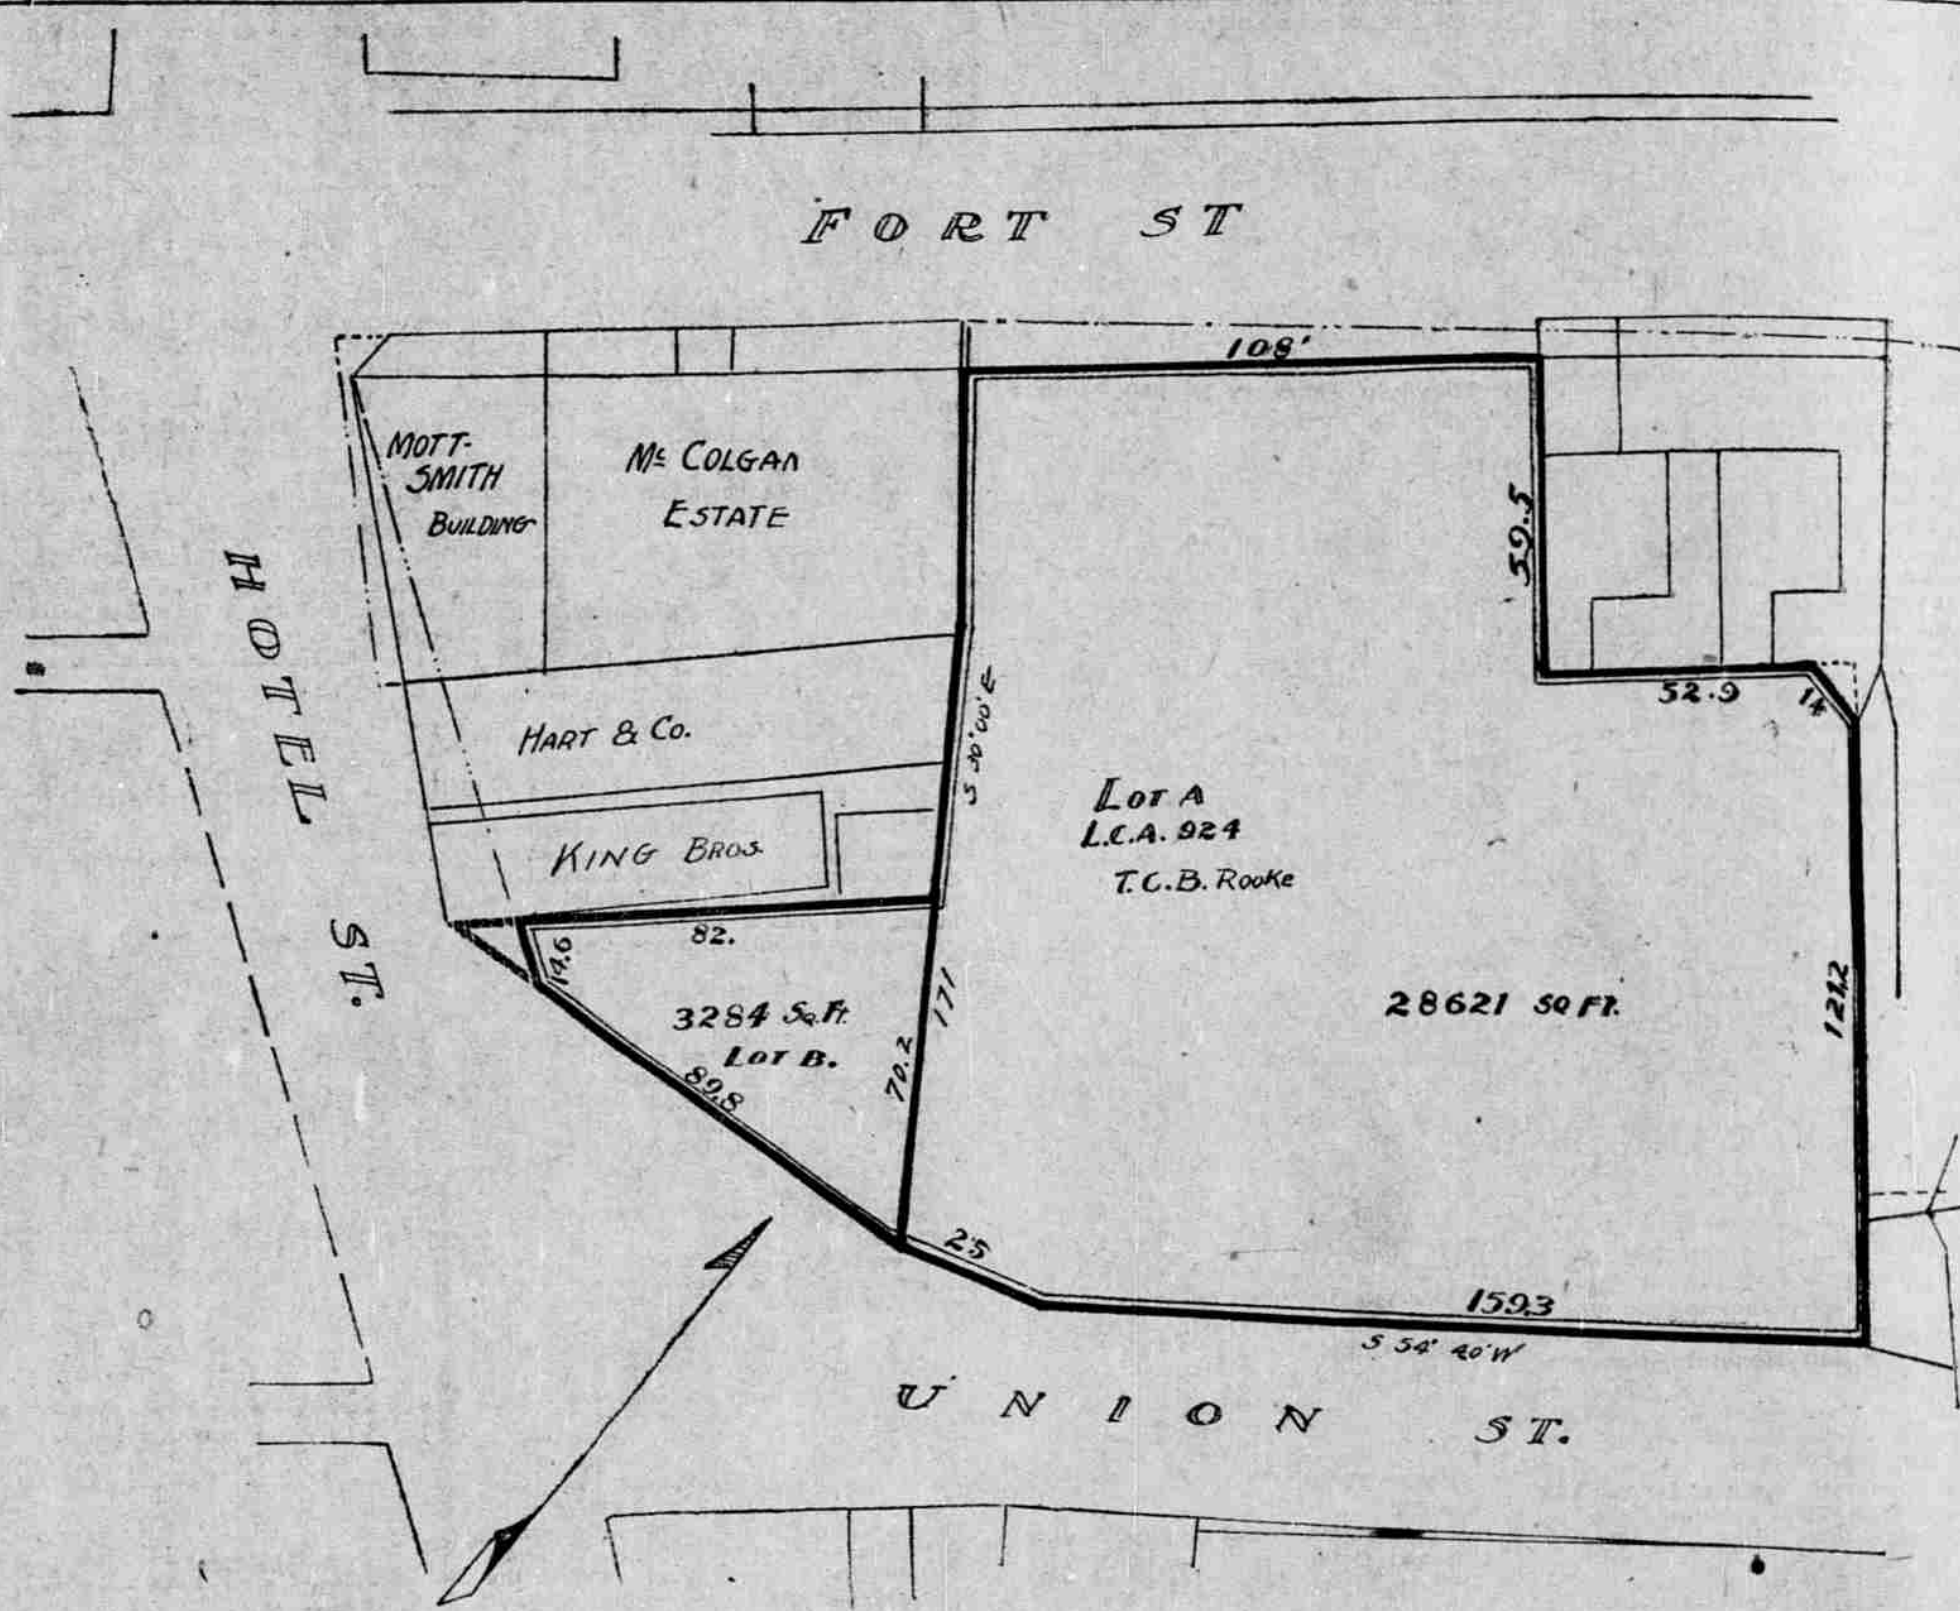

"I hobbled into Mr. Blackmon's drug store one evening," says Wesley Nelson, of Hamilton, Ga., "and he asked me to try Chamberlain's Pain Balm for rheumatism, with which I had suffered for a long time. I told him I had no faith in any medicine as they all failed. He said: 'Well, if Chamberlain's Pain Balm does not help you, you need not pay for it.' I took a bottle of it home and used it according to the directions and in one week I was cured, and have not since been troubled with rheumatism."
